EX-CHAMP 'PEPPED' BY WIN OVER FARR

Ready to Meet His Recent Victim or Max Baer in Bout on April 1.

By ALAN GOULD.

EW YORK, Jan. 22.-Jim Braddock, doubling for Old Man Comeback himself, looked forward today to a 1938 campaign that may lead to another shot at the heavyweight championship, in September, instead of making any further inquiries about the road to the old fighters' home.

It sounds fantastic, but the popular New Jersey Irishman has achieved the seemingly impossible so often during his amazing ring career that it's no longer safe to underestimate him or his prospects. He's registered so many underdog conquests now, the latest his thrilling 10-round victory last night over British Tommy Farr in Madison Square Garden, that it seems his only worry is the chance of going into the ring some night a betting favorite.

Jim Determined to Carry On.

PROMOTER MIKE JACOBS of the 20th Century Sporting Club offered Braddock his choice of a return bout with Farr or a match with Max Baer, from whom Jersey Jim won the world heavyweight crown in 1935, on April 1. Originally Jacobs planned to pit the Braddock-Farr winner against Baer on March 11, but Braddock wants a longer breathing spell before swinging back into action.

Braddock told the promoter he wanted to "talk it over with the missus" before giving a definite answer. Jim is determined to keep going, notwithstanding Mr. Baseline BASKET DUELLOST ing, notwithstanding Mrs. Braddock's desire to have him leave the ring. He was ready to quit, if decisively beaten by Farr, but now has taken on fresh

"I'm not old enough to quit, the way I feel now," said Jim, "and I'm not too old to take another shot at the

Ready to Ge 12 Rounds.

A RETURN Braddock-Farr match would be a natural after last night's proceedings. Only a sensational rally in the last two rounds saved Braddock from a licking. Even so the verdict was so close the three officials divided. A penalty round cost Farr the fight, as it turned out.

"I was feeling so strong at the finish that I think I might have knocked out Farr if it had been a longer match," said Braddock, notwithstanding the critical opinion that he was benefited by the short route. "I won because I rated my pace properly. My legs had a lot of spring in them at the finish." in his next fight. He expects to give Jacobs his decision Monday, at which time Farr also is slated to confer with the promoter. The Britisher went to Long Branch, N. J., for the week end. Farr and Braddock collected $19,-942.21 as their share of the winter's biggest fight gate. In addition, Farr received $1,500 for expenses. The net some of the other established stars if the latter discover that Baugh has a long-term contract. The brass hats of the outfit admit they are trying to sign Sammy, and that is all.

Meanwhile, Baugh isn't the only person speculating on the wise thing to Sam collected $5,000 from the Redskins last year. He surprised with his superlative performances. Almost for the title. In addition to his una fine ball carrier, an improved punter and a passable blocker. In short, the 24. fine college passer and kicker became a real football player.

That he deserves a beost in stipend is denied by nobody, but there is some question as to Baugh's wisdom if he signs a 3-year contract. If he led Wilson with 12 points. He was continues to improve, he will be worth more in 1939 than he was in 1938. That is to say nothing of 1940. By signing for three years he will get the Bwater. same salary each year.

Nagurski Won't Play.

ON THE other hand, Baugh might be wise to sign for three years. He finished his career at Texas Christian hobbling with a bad hip. He finished his first year as a pro hobbling with the same hip. If he got hurt in the initial 1938 game he would be assured of a steady income if he never played

At any rate, Sammy is taking his time deciding. In the process, he is stealing part of the show intended for the natives tomorrow.

Neither the Redskins nor the Bears will be at full strength, although the Chicago outfit has been harder hit by injuries than the Washingtonians. Wrestling champion Bronko Nagurski will be out of the Bears' backfield with an infected leg received on the mat. Also out, in all probability, will be Bernie Masterson, the chief passer and quarterback of the Western champs.

Howell May Be Through.

THE Redskins will be without Millard (Dixie) Howell, understudy to Baugh. Howell, still is in California. Doubt has been expressed here that Howell ever again will play with the Redskins. A new tackle Willie Wilkins, and a new back, Morris (Red) Elder, have been signed by Flaherty, but neither is well enough acquainted with the signals to break into the game as yet. Ray Peterson, who was signed in 'Frisco, will understudy Baugh if any understudying is

The Skins' line-up virtually will be the same that faced and defeated the Pacific All Stars last Sunday, 14 to 13. In the backfield will be Baugh. Cliff Battles, Riley Smith and Erny Pinckert. A was at one of the ends. He probably was used to make the Californians feel good.

Replacing Masterson in the Bears' backfield will be Ray Buivid, the former lost the opening match of the season

"The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," anthem of the Lone Star State, will be sung with extra sincerity by Texas football fans today when the Washington Redskins meet the Chicago Bears at Dallas. Squarely in focus will be the Redskins' Sammy Baugh of Sweetwater, Tex., whose great performance was instrumental in beating the Bears for the national pro championship this winter. Here we have Baugh and the No. 1 Baugh fan, Edmonia Smith, sophomore at Texas Christian, where Sammy rose to fame. Edmonia is Baugh's flancee.
